Guide to Bookshops.

Some years ago, we published a guide to the secondhand bookshops around Dunedin. It concentrated on those stores which advertised themselves as second-hand bookshops in the Yellow Pages. Due to public demand, we published a new one, but this time it's covered the area between Oamaru and Manapouri. It's called Hamblyn's

Official Guide to the Secondhand Bookshops In and Around Otago.

While it's probably not entirely comprehensive, it's a start. Tourists will like the fact that it marks out a trail from north to south, with a few detours in between... Copies can be had from "Read On!" by stopping into our store or emailing, phoning or writing to us and we'll put a copy in the post either as a "hard copy" or as a pdf.

Witi Ihimaera

features strongly this issue as our writer of the month. We've currently a copy of Whale Rider in stock, Te ao Marama: Contemporary Maori Writing, edited by the same, as well as Umelo's Ojinwah's Witi Ihimaera : a Changing Vision. Lastly, we have an anthology edited by Ihimaera and Long, being Into the World of Light: a Anthology of Maori Writing.

Through a Glass Darkly...

...or What's In A Window? What indeed?

I've had a word with the Managing Director and Cheryl tells me windows (which change weekly) will include the following themes, (about two months' worth!)

- ↪ Autumn
- ↪ Australia
- ↪ From Our Shelves to Yours
- ↪ Legal thrillers
- ↪ Our top-selling authors
- ↪ Potential classics

Popular Science.

We've a collection of what might be termed "popular science," so bone up on global warming today!

Happy Reading!
